The Malaysian State of Sarawak on the island of Borneo is one of South East Asia's best-kept secrets and a true adventurer's paradise. Travelling by longboat on the waterways amidst the pristine rainforests of Gunung Mulu National Park, we explore some of the massive cave systems and attempt a climb of the amazing limestone Pinnacles. We also spend a night in a traditional longhouse as guests of the Iban people - they're descendents of headhunters, who only last century had killed their enemies with blowpipes! These days the welcome is far more pleasant.

Active - These trips involve some activity and occasional hard travelling days. Accommodation can sometimes be quite basic. Physical preparation is important and a flexible, open-minded approach is essential. On treks you may be hiking up to six hours a day through steep terrain, sometimes at altitude, and a good level of physical fitness is required.
